

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A method and a device for data encryption in programming of control units is described. In this method, the data to be transmitted is encrypted byte by byte with a first key in a programming unit and then transmitted to a control unit via a data line. Then the data is decrypted in the control unit by using a second key which is provided in the control unit.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO